JSfirm.com Partners with Saint Francis University

Mount Pleasant, Pennsylvania (April 14, 2026) - JSfirm.com is excited to introduce a new Job Distribution Partnership with the Saint Francis University Aviation Education Center, a growing hub for aviation education dedicated to preparing students for careers across the industry.

The Aviation Education Center at Saint Francis University is known for combining hands-on training with academic excellence, giving students a strong foundation in areas such as flight training, aircraft maintenance, and aviation management. This new collaboration brings real-world career opportunities directly into that learning environment.

Through this partnership, students and alumni will be able to explore thousands of aviation job openings from employers around the globe, all conveniently integrated into the university's aviation resources. The goal is simple: make the transition from classroom to career as seamless and accessible as possible.

"Having this partnership with Saint Francis University allows us to show aspiring aviation professionals opportunities at an earlier stage in their careers," said Abbey Hutter, Executive Director of JSfirm.com. "Their commitment to developing skilled, career-ready graduates aligns perfectly with our mission to support the aviation industry's workforce needs."

"This collaboration reflects our broader mission to align aviation education with industry demand. By integrating career opportunities directly into our programs, we are empowering students to see not just where their education begins, but where it can take them." said Brianna Pavkovich, Director, Aviation Maintenance Technician Program of SFU Aviation Education Center.
